

Hello, my name is Esme Pitman and I used to be a student at Wicklewood Primary School.

Throughout the summer I gradually became more worried about high school: getting lost and missing the bus. But thankfully I've never missed it so far and I've only been lost once or twice.

In my primary school I absolutely detested sports. I completely lost faith in myself. But since only being here a couple of weeks, I've already started to enjoy it more.

I was also worried about the teachers, but luckily they've all been really supportive and friendly.

Now, if you knew me in Year 6, you would know that I cried non-stop throughout the last week of school. I just didn't want to leave all my friends behind. But I've actually made lots of new ones and I'm really enjoying it so far. So if I had to give some advice for any year 7's next year, it would be to not worry too much – after a week it will all seem natural.

Thanks for listening. I hope you enjoy the rest of your night.
